

Our client is a leading Aerospace Manufacturing organisation and part of a multinational Group. Due to internal promotions and a full client order book, this innovative and well established business now seek to recruit an experienced Engineering Project Manager to take a lead role in client liaison on a variety of programmes concerning product design, development, validation, manufacturing and technical support. Working closely with a dynamic team of design and stress engineers, the Engineering

read full article